APPENDIX B

A Bibliography of Motivational Interviewing

Christopher J. McLouth

Note: A full bibliography of more than 1,200 references, including outcome studies and clinical commentary arranged by topic, can be found at www.guilford.com/p/miller2.

BOOKS

Christopher J. McLouth is currently pursuing a PhD in clinical psychology at the University of New Mexico and also spends his time as a researcher at the university’s Center on Alcoholism, Substance Abuse, and Addictions. His research interests include causal mechanisms for MI and the statistical modeling of behavior change.

SYSTEMATIC REVIEWS

† Indicates studies that include a statistical meta-analysis.

Barnett, N. P., Tevyaw, T. O’L., Fromme, K., Borsari, B., Carey, K. B., Corbin, W.

Cloud, R. N., Besel, K., Bledsoe, L., Golder, S., McKiernan, P., Patterson, D., et al. (2006). Adapting motivational interviewing strategies to increase

Wagner, C. C., & McMahon, B. T. (2004). Motivational interviewing and

TRAINING

Bennett, G. A., Moore, J., Vaughan, T., Rouse, L., Gibbins, J. A., Thomas, P.,

Martino, S., Canning-Ball, M., Carroll, K. M., & Rounsaville, B. J. (2011). A

Appendix B: Bibliography

PROCESS RESEARCH

Catley, D., Harris, K. J., Mayo, M. S., Hall, S., Okuyemi, K. S., Boardman, T., et al.

THEORETICAL COMMENTARY

Cheng, M. K. S. (2007). New approaches for creating the therapeutic alliance:

